

01 / THE IDEA

The Council of Nark

Can more reviewers earn their cost?

One review can miss a whole lens

- Correctness: does the behaviour hold up?
- Architecture: do the contracts fit?
- Operations: what fails at three in the morning?

| Different attention could reveal different defects.

The council has two jobs

Independent reviews → one reconciled verdict

- Reviewers surface evidence and disagreements.
- A neutral fuser removes duplicates and ranks findings.
- The final review must preserve useful minority findings.

Keep the job identical. Change the character prose.

The cheap alternative deserves a trial

- One reviewer with all the lenses.
 - The same reviewer revisiting its own answer.
 - Several independent reviews of the same brief.
- Measure quality beside total tokens and time.

Let the council lose

Keep extra reviewers only when the evidence supports them.

| The goal is a dependable review with the smallest useful team.
